Volume 6, Issue 3

MESSAGE FROM THE COMMAND SERGEANT MAJOR

I would like to take this opportunity to emphasize the importance of our Family Readiness Group (FRG) which was established to provide support and information to our families – to include all JCU service members, government civilian employees, and their family members. The FRG's role is to provide a mechanism for the service member, spouse, and the JCU leadership to form a team to help you all cope with the challenges and unique stressors associated with military service and frequent separations.

Our FRG is committed to the Families of this command and to ensuring that each and every one of our service members and their families are aware of the support programs and resources available to them. As with every organization the whole is only as good as the individual part. Without your participation our FRG cannot and will not reach it fullest potential. The FRG has recently been involved in multiple projects, hopefully a majority of you experienced the Children's Christmas Party in December, as well as the monthly socials the spouses attend, to include interesting venues such as our most recent one at Twisted Jeweler. The FRG is currently preparing for the Unit summer picnic which occurs in August. If you are interested in joining the planning team please feel free to contact Gillian Long. Each month there is a flyer in the newsletter announcing the next event. Please reach out to your key caller if you have any questions.

~Steve

Well, it was another slow month for A Troop with people scattered all over the globe. Returning home just in time to watch the super bowl Vic, Dirk and Josh traveled to Georgia for a training exercise where Vic and Dirk discovered that a C-17 has a winch, Vic also continued to show that Cheetos can calm the beast that lives in his stomach.

To the dread of his team, Scott was promoted to Master Sergeant at the beginning of the month. Congratulations Scott, I'm sure you will rule with an iron fist. Jeff Carlson continues to maintain a high motivational level at the Army Senior Leadership Course. Don't worry Jeff, once you get back here it should be easy days full of relaxation and spa treatments. Adam, Matt and Jason spent more than half of the month attending an in depth Network administration class..now they can use big words to explain exactly what it is that I broke.

The Troop conducted a map reading and land navigation refresher. Now there will be no excuses for why guys can't stop working and find their way home at the end of the day (if only we could stop Frank from acting like a Nike shop foreman in China).

Ceven and Gus continue to journey around the globe on a weekly basis in their role as JCU recruiters. These guys have been doing an outstanding job and it looks like we might have to forcefully extract them from the recruiting office when their time is up.

On a related note, Steve Alexander cheated Tim Holton and me out of a recruiting trip to Europe. You may ask, how did he do this? Well, in a deciding coin toss somehow Frank allowed Steve to call "Headstails". Later I looked up the official coin toss rules and could not find that as an official pre-call. Heads, Tails or Side are the only legal calls. If I'd known we were playing street rules it would have been a completely different game. Frank's troop PT days have been an exceptional success. What might be observed as cries of excitement have been seen all over a well known social networking site. A key learning event was that if the troop was ever to be attacked by a pack of wolves and the only safe escape was to climb a rope....only two thirds of the Troop would make it home safely. Additionally, the entire Troop cannot wait to sprint back to the stadium for another one of Frank's stair runs.

Everyone in A Troop would like to wish Steve Powell the best of luck on leaving M Troop as he heads over to join B Troop in the trenches. The Troop couldn't have asked for a more competent maintenance technician in all of our adventures. (don't let your head swell too much over this Steve, we'll say the same thing about the next guy who takes your place).

~ Nathan

It is good to see that everyone back at work after a couple of well deserved weeks off. By the pep in everyone's step, I would venture that they had a good time. Now it is back to work and preparing for the next phase for us. We will be doing a lot of training over the next four months. With this training will come some short trips for the troop. There are a variety of reasons why it is important that we do these trips. Providing realistic training, as well as removing the distractions from the troop is a couple of examples. In fact I am writing this addition for the newsletter from Ft. Drum, NY while the guys are doing a number of different classes. So far we have had perfect weather since we have been here. Six inches of snow on Friday and a balmy 28 degrees today, could not ask for better snowball making conditions. Cotten is in Basic Airborne School and having a great time playing with the Army. Hopefully the weather will be good for him next week and he will be able to shed the moniker "Leg". Ben and Steve Comeau will be leaving for Basic Airborne School this week as well. It is good to see all the guys getting the opportunity to go to these schools.

~Jay

It is really hard to do these news letters from out here. Normally when we are at home, there are so many things to talk about. Different training events or trips or something. But, it is really hard to describe everything that the Troop is doing out here. There are a few things that we all have in common and everyone is extremely busy and doing great things out here for all of our customers.

Another reason this is difficult is because of the things that we are not supposed to discuss on phone calls or E-mail... and since I have to E-mail this to 1SG Prasse to get it in the news letter, I have to follow the same guidance. According to the policy we are only supposed to talk about the weather, Sports, relationships and other non-work / deployment related topics. (which makes it hard to do a Newsletter for work)

So here we go...

Weather: Several of us are cold, some of us are hot. Some of us are wet and some dry. A few of us have had snow, but most just rain, or nothing at all.

Sports: The Packers Won the Super Bowl!! But, I heard the half time show sucked. Dale Jr. was doing well at Daytona but got caught up in a wreck late in the race and finished 22nd. Gordon and Johnson finished even worse.

Relationships: As far as relationships, I am leaving that one alone... Except that I hear that Kenny and Ray may be getting closer. (That is what the fellas are saying anyways)

Well, that is about all That I am allowed to discuss, so I just have two more things Both are with Petty Officer Day. If anyone talks to him, make sure to congratulate him, the US Navy saw fit to promote him this month to Petty Officer First Class and to say thanks he decided to re-enlist. So, congrats to the Day family for both of these!

Talk to you guys next month
~Millsy

Above: ET1 Day is re-enlisted by Capt Scott McLaughlin.

Well now! It seems after my last attempt at putting pen to paper (or these days fingers to keyboard, which somehow sounds far less refined) my writing style has found its way into high society; and I will, no doubt, be nominated for a Literary Nobel Prize (or is that Illiterary), either way I'm sure to win. So after I type this up I'm off to get a fittin for my Tux.

It has been a busy month in D Troop and things are clicking right along as we continue to prepare and train for our upcoming deployment. Thanks to everyone for your hard work and positive attitude. As always we have folks coming and going in a variety of endeavors, and as such we would like to welcome back Kevin from the Marine Corp Staff NCO Career Course and DH from his around the world in 20ish days adventure. Great Job guys! We sent Byrd to Airborne School and I understand he is doing great; we can't wait to see those wings on his chest when he returns. Cherry!

While most of us back here in garrison have had our nose to the grindstone with training and taskings (thanks Ops), we have a good portion of the troop enrolled in various advanced automation classes. Albert Einstein said "Imagination is more important than knowledge". Well I imagine that all of our folks who have been in these classes may have more knowledge now than they ever would have imagined. Kudos to all of you for powering through those classes one after the other. We are looking forward to how we can incorporate all that new found Einstein knowledge down range.

Congratulations to Greg and Liz

Durr, we recently found out they are expecting. That a boy Greg! Also expecting, actually expecting for a while now, is the Lunas and Avilas; congrats ya'll. Mrs. Avila (Lisa) if you don't know has stepped up to take on the key caller duties for the Troop, so Thank You Lisa. You may just get your first opportunity for Troop Key Caller action. We would like to plan a Troop function sometime in April prior to our deployment. Don't want to make too much of a fuss, but we would like to get everyone together, especially the families, to break bread and enjoy each other's company before we head out. Suggestions Anyone?

Thanks again for what you do each and every day and for the opportunity to serve alongside you. Stay Sharp, Stay Focused, and in the words of a fellow Literary Pioneer let's continue to "Get-R-Done".

- Del

Although February is a short month, it was a busy one for G-Troop with respect to movements. Fabian Robles, Pete Nunnery, and Ulysses Otero (OT) returned while Travis Jenkins (JT), John Mosley, Matt Heist, and Bryan Hargrove replaced them.

JTEP is going through some "cool" changes!! As I am sure you have noticed by now, there is a big trailer parked along the building. The trailer contains a temporary AC system while the pre WWII units that use to cool off the TEP get replaced. The same is happening in a couple of the shelters out on the antenna field, keeping Tim Tapio and Leon Hamilton busy for sure.

Congrats to Max Fermin for being recognized as the "Honor Graduate" at the 1SG academy. This being said, his success is no surprise to those that know and have worked with him. He is a consummate professional and is just one example of the quality and caliber of NCO's we have in JCU.

In hopes of starting a new trend, OT, Leon, and Will Crocket will be heading to cooler surroundings to train with B-TRP. Dave Allen and Jay Pylman told us the weather is nice there this time of year, so it should be fun, RIGHT!!

We would like to take this opportunity to thank G-TRP spouses for all of their support. While we support the good fight, they keep things running smoothly back on the home front. We could NEVER do it without you.

-OT

Hello everyone. It seems as though some nicer weather is trying to take a foothold and I hope everyone was able to take advantage of the 70+ degree days we had over President's Day weekend. The shop has been extremely busy and we'll be losing some great folks over the next few months which is going to make the shop floor much more exciting as the "New" guys fill in for the losses. To help fill the void, we gained two new technicians in February. ET1 Chris Scott and ET1 Gabriel Ramirez both joined us from B troop and will be going through training for the next few months to hone their technical skills. Joining the Motor Pool this month is SSG Justin White. He's currently attending the NCO academy so you may not see much of him around the shop until the middle of March. Welcome to the team guys! This month we'll be making a change to our FRG Key Caller. Amy Huffman has been

M-Troop's Key Caller for quite a while and the time has come for her to pass it off to the next motivated spouse. Thanks Amy for everything you've done in the position and making yourself available to perform the duties. It's always comforting to know that there is someone available to speak to about spouse related issues concerning the troop. M- Troop's new Key Caller will be Kelley Larson who has previous experience as a Navy unit OMBUDSMAN. Kelly's contact information can be found in the Key Caller section and if you have any questions or ideas concerning the position please give her a call. Since our last newsletter we've had two personnel from M-Troop who were recognized for their hard work and job performance. SSgt Vince Olshove was selected as the USAF NCO of the Quarter and Mrs. Carleen Nichols was selected as the Civilian of the Quarter. Congratulations Vince and Carleen! Major Carkeet has apparently been tagged as the collateral duty re-enlistment officer as he's been asked to re-enlist yet another M-Trooper, MSgt Jared Sams, on 25 Feb. Thanks for your service Jared. To close up for this month's newsletter, I wanted to say that I've been hearing good reports back from the field that Chief Anderson and ET1 Drew have been doing great things for the teams and sites they are supporting. Great job guys and keep up the good work. Take care and stay safe.

-Mike

The Selection and Training section has been hard at work this month. SOROC Class 1-11 has started its academics phase and we can smell the brain cells frying. Good luck to everyone on the first exercise and test. GySgt Knouse has the class "dress right dress" and running all over in hopes to mold their bodies and mind. MSgt Jamey Slife has started the USMC Martial Arts Black Belt Instructor Course. As far as we know, he is doing well but may have a fat lip or two. We expect him to return in a cloud of smoke in a black ninja suit with a battle cry AAHHHTACK "This is how it's done". We would like to welcome. CPT Mary Almquist aboard as our new training officer. S&T would also like to welcome Roland "Augie" Marks to the team after he returns from his well deserved leave. Kyle has returned from his last trip broke as a joke, but COTR qualified. If only they taught him how to gamble in the COTR course. Lastly we cannot forget to recognize our instructor cadre, PO1 Boyer and TSgt Schlade on all the great work over the past month. Great job everyone.

~Chris

Hello to all of the SMT readers. I would first like to say thanks to all of the significant others that are supporting their service members. Without your support we would have a lot more grumpy people at work. Trust me it isn't fun working with grumpy people.

EC, the guys that are truly in the most selfless and thankless job on the compound, welcomes two new RTO's Rick Lepage and Mike Lamb (our first senior citizen in the section), great to have them on board. Marcus is at the Senior Leadership Course, Fort Gordon, GA. We expect lots of formations and inspections when he gets back at the end of the month. Ameer is still forward working hard and anticipating his return next month, when Mark and Rick go out to replace him and conduct their turnover. Tigo and Rob have been collecting TDY days, every once in awhile they actually get to sleep at home.

IO would like to welcome in its newest member and family to the Detachment Bernard Byers. They have traveled from Japan to Fayetteville, NC. I am sure that they are glad that the trip is over with. Scott Hamilton has traveled up to our vacation spot to relieve Scott Bachand. He has been looking forward to getting at it for awhile now. Scott was happy to return home and get back to building our new building. Sam and Sean are pulling their hair out working with our newest testing software. Not really a good thing since they don't have much left to pull out. The other guys in the shop are trucking along loving life.

To the rest of the Quiet Professionals in SMT we would like to say thanks for doing what you do. You guys are truly the tip of the spear in the communications world. Maybe one of these days you will be able to tell your significant others about all of the fun that you have.

~Bryan

JCU Activities Club Membership

In order for the JCU Activities Club (JCUAC) to remain ready to support our members and their families, all JCU members must do their part and keep current on their dues. The JCUAC is currently sitting at 274 out of 298 (92%) that are current for this year. Next year's membership drive will start on July 1, 2011. While being a member of the JCUAC is in no way mandatory, it is highly encouraged. Membership is open to all JCU members except deployed contractors & IA's. The JCUAC provides baby baskets, flowers for hospitalizations or funerals, FRG Lunches, single service member lunches, reduced or free Hooah Appreciation Day lunches, free unit picnic entry for whole family, free entry into the annual anniversary party, reduced price for every 5-year anniversary & reunion party, free children's Christmas party, Highland Game Streamers, JCU departure plaque and much more. The JCUAC also stocks the JCU store and only makes a few dollars off of most items. While the Special Operations Communicators Association provides support for the big annual anniversary party, the JCUAC pays for all other expenses. It is very important that we keep the money coming in and keep giving you and your families the best possible support for unit morale & welfare. I ask that you take the time to take care of your dues with me or on our website, there is now a PayPal button located on the store page under the extras tab and you can use any credit card for payment. Everyone will benefit from the JCUAC at some point, some may not get anything from it for years, the point being is that it isn't about any ONE of us, it is about the JCU TEAM and is how we can make a difference in a member or their families eyes when the need arises or off-setting cost's at various events. Taking care of our own since 1980, it is a tradition not a task. Thank you for your time.

JCU,

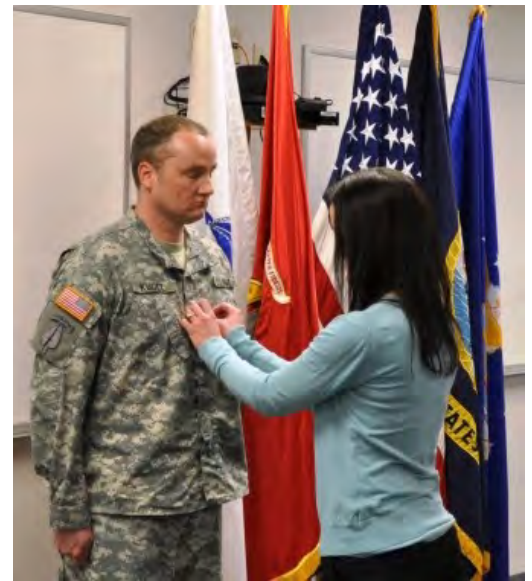

As you know I have turned over the illustrious duties of the JCU 1SG to 1SG Jim Prasse. I wanted to let you all know that it has been my honor to have served you for the past 3+ years. I have been in JCU for almost 12 years and have held a lot of positions, had some cool duty titles, but the BEST part of my career here has been as the Unit 1SG. I have gotten to know all of you, welcomed you aboard in my sometimes "grumpy" way, said farewell to a lot of good folks along the way and tried to boost your morale at every opportunity. Whether it was driving the General around and hitting the 800 horns at you when you were hard at work outside, or even if you were inside and I drove into the bay to wake you all up with the sound of Dixie. My whole existence here was to give you an outlet from the rigorous training and deployments that you have or just another reason to get out of the office for a while. Things like the Highland Games, Jingle Stick Competition, Hooah Appreciation Day Lunches, picnics, parties etc... were all for you and a thank you for all you do in an otherwise un-appreciative world. I was where you are, I realize the value of fair, hard, but caring leadership. I trust the unit is in good hands with Jim, please support him as you have me. I look forward to seeing all of you here at home on April 1st at my retirement ceremony. For those deployed, keep up the good fight and return home safely. In closing, I have always said that if I helped one person each day in some shape or fashion, it was a successful day. Help each other, watch over one another, take the time to be a member of JCU, not just someone that got assigned here or that it is your 9-5 job. Be and stay one of "DoD's Finest Communicators", the nation is depending on you. Soldiers, Sailors, Airman, Marines and Civilians, thanks for your support and for letting me be a part of it.

Answer to last months RETRO JCU ? (did you guess correctly?)

Last month's RETRO picture is not Howdy Doody, but none other than SFC Kyle Roscoe. This picture was taken back in 1987 when Kyle was only 8 years old. There is a matching picture to this with Kyle's twin brother wearing a matching yellow shirt. This was the only way his parents could tell Kyle and his brother apart. You may have been on a jump where you saw both of them standing next to each other and the only way to tell which one was Kyle was by looking at the Unit patches.
